State finals will be held in Washington, D.C., on April 7, and the nationals will be held in the city May 18-19.

Performing Arts schedules cabaret

The MSSD Performing Arts program will celebrate its tenth season with a revue of past productions on Feb. 9, 10, and 11 in the MSSD auditorium.

The cabaret will celebrate the contributions students, volunteers, artists, and instructors have made to the Performing Arts program.

The show will feature songs and scenes from musicals such as "Annie Get Your Gun," "Oliver," "Jesus Christ Superstar," "South Pacific," "Godspell," and others. Also featured will be scenes from plays including "Arsenic and Old Lace" and "A Midsummer Night's Dream." Selections from previous dance concerts and special guest appearances will be included in the program.

Tickets are $4 for adults and $3 for students and senior citizens. For reservations, call x5466 (V/TDD).

Volunteer program develops new policy and goals

Among several new goals being developed for Gallaudet's growing volunteer program are a special training series for people who supervise volunteers and an official volunteer policy.

Volunteer coordinator Cindi Olson and her assistant, volunteer LaVerne Fletcher, are developing a training series to be offered this spring to approximately 25 employees who supervise volunteers here. The training will include an April workshop with Anita Bradshaw, former director of management and development training for VOLUNTEER—The National Center.

Bradshaw will demonstrate supervisory techniques that work particularly well with volunteers, and also with paid staff, said Olson.

"In some ways it is harder to supervise a volunteer than a paid employee," said Olson. "Paid employees have a job description. But with volunteers you have to figure out what they're good at and what they enjoy."

"I look at supervisors of volunteers as volunteers also, because supervising volunteers is not usually in their job descriptions," said Olson. And Gallaudet does not have a policy for recognizing the supervisory duties of employees who supervise only volunteers, she said.

The services that volunteers provide are important to the University. Its volunteer corps includes 60 regular volunteers who provide about 825 hours of free labor and expertise every month.

Olson and Director of Human Resources Denise Sullivan are writing an official volunteer policy that will include a system for recognizing the supervisory duties of those who supervise volunteers.

In addition to recruiting and placing volunteers at the University, Olson will recruit and train qualified volunteers for The Deaf Way Conference and Festival and the Self Help for Hard of Hearing Convention that will take place this summer.

Other goals Olson has identified for the volunteer program include developing guidelines for supervisors to use in training new volunteers, maintaining statistical records on volunteers and their work, assessing the program's future needs and direction, and continuing to recognize volunteers through the annual dinner and awards ceremony.

Interim administrators become permanent

Three interim administrators in Academic Affairs were recently chosen to permanently head their respective areas.

Dr. Howard Busby was named dean of Student Affairs. Astrid Goodstein has accepted the position of director of Enrollment Management. And Dr. Michael Karchmer has assumed the position of dean of Graduate Studies and Research.

In addition, James Tucker was recently named director of Admissions. A Gallaudet alumnus and member of the English Department since 1985, Tucker is currently a doctoral candidate at the University of Maryland.

Spring PACE catalog available

People looking for ways to increase their skills, learn new things, meet new people, or just have a good time can take a look at the new spring catalog now available from Programs in Adult and Continuing Education (PACE).

Although PACE is a unit of the College for Continuing Education, PACE activities listed in the catalog are not traditional academic classes. Participants can learn how to use the newest computer to plan and manage finances, explore their intuition, improve their appearance, or relax in Tai Chi classes. Courses to upgrade reading and writing skills or to work toward a high school diploma are available.

PACE also offers seminars in professional development for deaf adults, special classes for senior citizens, and activities for deaf-blind people.

Most PACE instructors are deaf, and some classes are taught by hearing people who are fluent in sign language, or with qualified interpreters. Classes are open to both deaf and hearing adults.

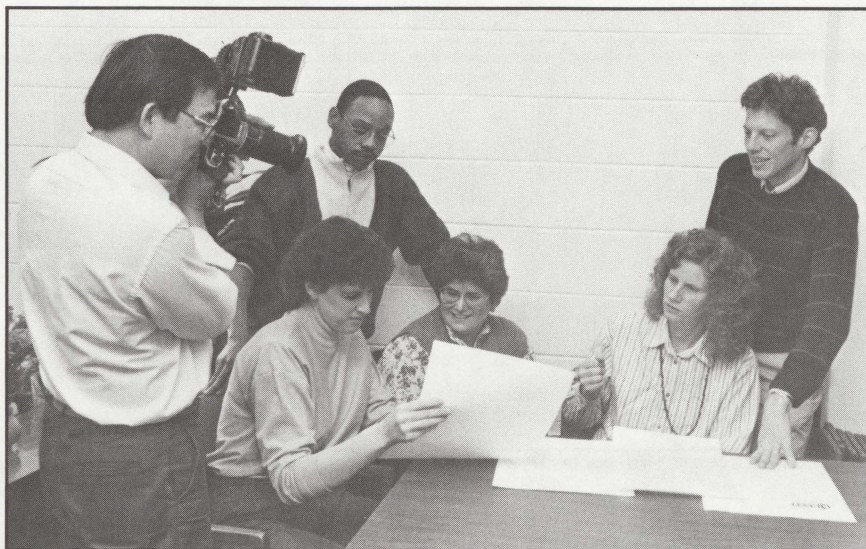

To learn more about PACE classes or to get a free copy of the new PACE catalog, call x5044 or stop by the PACE offices in College Hall, second floor.

Abandoned cars will be towed

The following vehicles are in violation of administration and operation procedures and must be removed within 72 hours after publication of this notification, according to the Department of Safety and Security.

If the vehicles are not removed, they will be considered abandoned and will be towed away as junk by the District of Columbia Police Department:

- 1978 Grand Prix, 2 door, no tags, black.
- 1973 Nova, 2 door, no tags, green.
- 1973 Volkswagen, 2 door, D.C. tag 392-698, blue.

OTG clarifies policies for readers

The staff of On the Green is always looking for story ideas or articles of interest to faculty and staff. To help clarify policies and provide information about On the Green, the following information is provided:

Content: Ideas for stories or contributions to OTG should be of interest to the campus community as a whole. Items about specific activities of individual faculty and staff members can be submitted for the "Among Ourselves" column. Information about upcoming campus activities can be included in the "Announcements" column. "Classified Ads" are printed free as a service for faculty and staff only, and no business-related classifieds are accepted. Ads can run for a maximum of two weeks, space permitting. The staff reserves the right to select, edit, and hold for later publication any contribution to OTG. All submissions must include name and phone number.

Story Ideas: Contact editor Vickie Walter, assistant editor Todd Byrd, or writer Lynne McConnell at x5671 with ideas for news or feature stories. Suggestions for possible photographs are also welcomed. All articles submitted for consideration should be typed and double spaced. Please provide the name and telephone number of the author or person to contact for more information. Because of tight deadlines, articles either submitted by individuals or written by OTG staff are generally not available for review by individuals or departments prior to publication.

Schedule and Circulation: On the Green is published every Monday except for designated holidays or other specific occasions resulting from University closing. Faculty and staff who do not regularly receive the paper by Wednesday should check with their department or call x5154.

Copy Deadline: Deadline for submitting information for OTG is Friday, 10 days before the date of publication on Monday. For example, information to be included in the issue of Feb. 20 must be received by close of business on Friday, Feb. 10. This deadline is necessary to ensure adequate time for writing, editing, design, typesetting, printing, and distribution, which are all done on campus.

Publisher: On the Green is published by Gallaudet's Department of Publications and Production. The OTG office is located in MSSD, Room G-17.

We look forward to hearing from you! Please address all communication to:
